Likewise, it is a violation of Federal law to damage, open, or otherwise tamper with any mail in mail boxes. "It Could Happen Tomorrow" Warns Civil Defense

"In the wake of the current war scare in the Cuban Crisis, I urge you as individuals to remain calm, cool and collected. By all means DO NOT PANIC."

The atomic bomb - the most powerful of all man-made powers, is here, and here to stay. We as individuals might as well prepare ourselves to live with it. The preparation we have made and will make in the future, is the deciding factor of our survival."

Shirley L. Carpenter, Civil Defense Director-Coordinator for Coffee County has stated, and continued, "I wish to emphasize the fact that the Coffee County Civil Defense Cooperation is a source by which you may gain the much needed information which might determine your survival in time of nuclear attack."

Although much information has been available for some time, "I shall percent of the only for the asking, Carpenter states.

This is the definition of fallout.

Gridiron Affray

The "old timers" defeated the "young'uns" 12-6 in a spirited game Saturday in Elba.

Neither team scored until the fourth quarter of the game. The "old timers" scored the first touchdown which was by Jimmy Wise, PAT touchdown was attempted by 285 pound fullback Robert Russell, and was stopped by Marvin McCollough last of the goal line.

After the kick return, the old timers (team 56 and years back) went 65 yards in 5 plays to score on a pass play from Carroll Flowers to Leon Brunson which covered the remaining 20 yards. PAT touchdown was fumbled.

This drive was spotlighted by Earl McCollough and Donnie Flowers and passes from Donnie Flowers to Eugene Devane.

With 7 seconds remaining in the ballgame, Earl McCollough intercepted a pass and ran 35 yards before an over anxious player from the opposite team who was on the bench impulsively jumped up and ran out on the field and tackled the player with the ball. This automatically resulted in a touchdown for the "old timers" team.

The ballgame was climaxed by outstanding defense plays on both sides. The "young'uns" never advanced further than mid field but once during the first half. This came about on a pass interference play from Jimmy Wise to Tom Dyess.

Despite the cigarettes and cigar smoking during time outs, this was one of the hardest fought football games that has ever been played in the Tiger Stadium. The old timers showed too much determination and desire to give up. When the dust cleared from the field at the end of the game all that could be seen was teeth, broken bones, and skin.

1956-and years back - Old Timers - Carroll Flowers, Earl McCollough, Leon Brunson, Tadmage Brunson, Jimmy Bush, John Frank Hudson, Monroe Parkers, Bill Bullard, Jimmy Hudson, Eugene Devane, Mack Westbrooks, Donnie Flowers, Omega Farris, Bill Brazzelton, Robert Newton, and Marvin McCollough.

public has availed themselves of the opportunity to learn how to take care of themselves now that they need to. The local Civil Defense office stands ready to keep the public informed through pamphlets telling what to do in case of emergency. The public is reminded to learn the alert signals, and know how to use the Contral-640 or 1240 on the radio dial.

Stressing that there is no need for panic, Carpenter encourages the public to find the safest place in their home and prepare it, or better still, prepare a fallout shelter. Stock the shelter with food and water for two weeks, stock a cabinet with medical supplies, seek information in home nursing, medical self help - first aid.

The Civil Defense Office in Elba has pamphlets on fallout shelters, plus how to prepare and stock one. They are yours only for the asking, Carpenter states.

It is the definition of fallout.

Fallout is the earth and debris that is sucked up into a cloud that is formed after a nuclear explosion. According to estimates, about one-half of the material from a surface blast will return to the earth's surface within the general vicinity of the blast area in about 12 hours. The remainder may go high into the atmosphere and gradually descend over a period of days or years. The size of the fallout particles, together with the wind, rain and other atmospheric conditions, will determine largely when and where they will fall to the earth's surface. The fallout is a source of radiation that can be hazardous to life in an area.

It is pointed out that any over head cover is protection against fallout. Naturally the greater the concentration of the fallout, or the intensity of it the better overhead protection is needed.

More detailed information is available in prepared Civil Defense pamphlets on this and many other vital subjects at your Civil Defense Office.

The public shelter survey conducted recently in Elba by Corps of Engineers, United States Army Engineers, Mobile District, Mobile, Alabama, shows that all buildings checked were rejected in as much as they did not provide adequate shielding to be classified as appropriate shelters.

"One closing thought - It did not happen yesterday - It has not happened so far today. It could happen tomorrow," warns Carpenter.

OUR SOUTHERN STATES

100 YEARS AGO

"THE GALLANT PELHAM"

"100 Years Ago"

John Pelham of Alabama

was continuing to prove himself one of the shining stars of Lee's artillery. As the Federal army massed in the neighborhood of Warrenton in preparation for the battle of Pre-dericksburg, Lee's communications were threatened. Stuart's cavalry, with Pelham in command of his Horse Artillery, was guarding the mountain passes and aiding General Lee in the race for strategic positions.

John H. Pelham was one of six sons that Dr. Atkinson Pelham, a large planter and country doctor near Jacksonville, Alabama, gave to the Southern army. Resigning from West Point in 1861, Pelham returned to the South through Federal lines and was assigned to the Horse Artillery in J.E.B. Stuart's cavalry. He fought in First Bull Run, in the Seven Days' campaign, and Second Bull Run, in all displaying exceptional military ability.

This "Boy Major," as he was called, came to be the shining star of Stuart's Horse Artillery. Although only 24 years old, he was promoted to major in time for the Antietam campaign where he accompanied Lee in his first invasion of the North and there held a point essential to the Confederate position. He fought at Fredericksburg where Lee said of him: "It is glorious to see such courage in one so young; and described him as "gallant" by which name he is known to posteriority.

Pelham is described by Douglas H. Freeman as "a grand and a first as ever lived," and three Southern girls put up mourning when he was killed on March 17, 1863, at Kelley's Ford. He was mourned all over the South where his genius and sterling character had caught the imagination of the people.

Stuart telegraphed the Congressman J. L. M. Curry, as follows: "The noble, the chival-rous, the gallant Pelham is no more. He was killed in action yesterday. His remains will be sent you today. How much he was beloved, appreciated, and admired, let the tears of agony we here shed, and the gloom of mourning throughout my command, bear witness. His loss is irreparable.

Pelham's body lay in state in Richmond and was then sent to Jacksonville for burial.

Speed WRITING

by J.R. Speed, County Agent

What is pH and what does it mean? This question is often asked, County Agent

J. R. Speed said here this week.

"The pH of a soil is simply another measure of the soil's fertility," he explained. "If you know the pH of your soil, then you know whether it is acid or alkaline. Soil us alkaline if it has a pH above 7.0. A pH of less than 7.0 indicates an acid soil. A pH of 7.0 is neutral.

"For good crop growth and high yields, soil should have a pH of about 6.0," continued Speed. "If it is more than 6.0, it should be neutralized. If it is less than 6.0, it should be acidified.

"One reason plants are able to absorb more phosphates at this pH level than at any other. In fact, one pound of phosphate will produce more cotton at a pH of 6.0 than two pounds of phosphate will at a pH of 5.1.

"This shows that plenty of phosphorus in the soil must be such that the plant can use it. The fertilizer. Knowing the pH of your soil will tell you whether they can or not.

By testing in October the line needs of your soil can be determined and the line time can be spread before fields become too wet. And time applied early helps next years crops more."

YOUR Health

by J.R. Speed, County Agent

Why drops in the eyes during examination? To examine the eyes properly, the ophthalmologist often finds it necessary to put the focusing or accommodative mechanism at rest. Putting a stop to the action of the muscles of accommodation for a short period is accomplished by the use of drops. The duration of the effect may be as long as several days or as short as a few minutes, and the type of medication used is to be determined by the age of the patient and the condition to be studied or treated.

Eye drops are a valuable form of medication. In certain diseases there is danger in using such drops, and that is why there are laws which permit only doctors of medicine to use the drops. Only the opthalmologist or oculist — specialists concerned with the eye and its diseases — are trained in the use of drops.

Drops dilate the pupil of the eye, making it easier to examine the interior which often affords vital information.

Drops also make it possible for the wide pupil to provide a sharper focus of the test object on the retina. This sharper retinal image helps many patients select suitable lenses to correct their vision.

The ophthalmologist is a physician, an M.D., with knowledge of all types of eye disorder. He is prepared to examine the eye for refractive and accommodative errors, to diagnose and treat eye diseases, to care for eye injuries, and to perform surgical operations on the eye when necessary. And only the ophthalmologist is permitted by law to use drops in the eyes.

Returning from an inspection trip aboard the U.S.S. Battleship Alabama, State Senator John M. Tyson of Mobile, center, is shown presenting an Alabama flag to retired Navy Capt. J. G. Thwing of Seattle, Wash., right, Alabama's West Coast representative in the campaign to return the famous battleship to Mobile as a state shrine. At left is retired Rear Adm. M. E. Eaton of Mobile, under whom Capt. Thwing formerly served. The Alabama flag was the gift of Alabama Gov. John Patterson, who has named a 23-member committee to save the U.S.S. Alabama from the scrap heap. The battleship now lies at anchor in a Navy moth ball fleet near Seattle.

Governor's Committee At Work To 'Save The USS Alabama'

Plans to bring the U.S.S. Battleship Alabama "home" as a permanent state memorial are rapidly taking shape.

A group of six Alabamians, members of Governor John Patterson's Committee to Save the U.S.S. Alabama, visited Wilmington, N.C. this week to view the U.S.S. North Carolina which was captured there a year ago. Since last October, a half-million paying visitors have come aboard the ship.

From Wilmington, the group proceeded to Washington to meet with U.S. Navy officials, who have promised "full assistance."

Another state group has just returned from a first-hand look at the famed U.S.S. Alabama, which is now tied up in the Pacific Reserve Fleet at Bremerton, Washington. Unless plans can be worked out to return the ship to Alabama, it is scheduled to be scrapped next year.

"It was an inspiring sight to see the Alabama," said State Senator John M. Tyson of Mobile, who headed the group which visited the battleship. "She is a magnificent ship, and this visit has made us more determined than ever to save her from the torch."

Among the group which visited Bremerton were school Superintendent Vernon L. St. John of Opp, former U.S.S. Alabama crewman Charles L. McCafferty of Selma, and Rear Admiral (retired) M. E. Eaton of Mobile, who formerly served at Seattle, Washington—just across Puget Sound from Bremerton.

Appointed as Alabama's West Coast representative to assist in bringing home the Alabama was Navy Captain (retired) J. G. Thwing of Seattle, who served under Admiral Eaton.

On their way home to Alabama, the Bremerton group flew over the U.S.S. Texas, which is now a state memorial near Houston. It was returned to Texas about 15 years ago.

In charge of the Wilmington visit this week was Attorney Henri M. Aldridge of Mobile, chairman of the Governor's Save-the-Alabama Committee. The committee is to investigate the feasibility of returning the U.S.S. Alabama to Mobile and opening it to visitors.

Alabama—LIMITED or UNLIMITED?

By Truman M. Pierce
Dean, School of Education
Auburn University

What makes a prosperous community, state, or nation? Many attempts have been made recently to point the way toward greater wealth and prosperity for Alabama and her citizens. Industrialization has been stressed as one road to these goals. Some have suggested better utilization of Alabama's vast natural resources.

Others say better education is the key to greater wealth and higher standards of living. What are the key factors in achieving the higher income levels so diligently sought by individuals, states, and nations? How does a community, state, or nation mobilize for increased wealth and prosperity?

Rich and extensive natural resources do not necessarily guarantee wealth. This fact has been proven in Brazil, Mexico, and Colombia which are rich in natural resources, but low in per capita income. As late as 1954, per capita income in Denmark and Switzerland is high in comparison to that of other countries, yet these two countries are very poor in natural resources. Natural resources alone do not provide the key to higher standards of living.

It is clear that education is a factor related to levels of wealth. Education is the development of the people in Brazil, Mexico, and Colombia is very poor. Great riches in natural resources result only in low per capita income in these countries. But in Denmark and Switzerland there is high per capita income despite limited natural resources. But there is a high level of educational achievement. Any country, state or community searching for improved standards of living for its people must take stock of its educational progress.

The United States, compared to other nations, has both high educational achievement and high per capita income. This is due to the fact that the United States has a high level of educational achievement. Any country, state or community searching for improved standards of living for its people must take stock of its educational progress.

Dr. P. P. Claxton, who served as U.S. Commissioner of Education, developed a formula for estimating the wealth of a nation or state which he stated as:

Material Resources x Native Ability (Education) x Wealth Producing Power

Claxton's formula makes it possible to compare the various states with respect to their wealth and their capacity to produce wealth. How does Alabama fare when Claxton's formula is applied?

Next week's article takes a look at Alabama's natural resources. The second and third factors in Claxton's formula, native ability and acquired ability through education, will be the subject of the article week after next.

Straight Talk

From TOM ANDERSON

WASHINGTON, D.C. — America is the policeman, banker, and Santa Claus for the world. Inspiring statement from government employee: "You're doing a fine job of crushing me with your all the way, but I don't want you."

"Mental Health" threats are now being used to scare "uncooperative" people out of their government jobs. The Disarmament Bill is part of a plan to turn our entire defense over to United Nations forces which would turn over all of our arms to U.S. forces by 1977. If this comes to pass, the U.S. will invade us, in a Kung-fu style. And we'll have civil war. And treason trials for the living losers.

Washington sights: The Supreme Court Building, where the Communists get 80% of the decisions and where God got only one vote. Abraham Lincoln said, "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord."

We have a big feather surplus. Real honest-to-goodness goose feathers. This feather surplus does not include the featherweights in Washington who are running the country. The way to solve the feather surplus problem, it has been suggested, is to organize a Goose Corps. This Corps would distribute the new oral contraceptives to use on their flocks. Fill all the flocks with pills. The pills would be of course, be non-transferable. A goose is a goose.

One of the President's closest advisors confides to friends, "We have only two courses open: 1. War 2. Create Socialist America."

"We must take choice number 2 and Khrushchev will have to join us. Bowles, Stevenson, Fulbright, Kennedy, Heller all feel the same way."

We the people have a third choice. Impach our "no-winners."

DOG MODEL

(Memphis Commercial Appeal) Certainly we never had any idea when we first saw an English sheep dog that it would come to serve as a model for a fashionable hair-do.

Elba Junior

Tigers Defeat

All Foes

The Elba Junior Team, under the direction of Coach Ronald Powell and help of Bill Oggs, is undefeated and united in five games.

ELBA - 28 - SAMSON - 6

Elba Junior Tigers crushed the Samson Junior Tigers here Thursday, October 18, by a score of 28-6. Stan Marsh tallied on a 35 yard run from the first play of scrimmage with the offensive line. Bobby Edmondson added the PAT. The second score came after a 97 yard run by Bobby Edmondson. Mack Holloway added the PAT. Elba scored again in the third quarter on a 35 yard run by Edmondson with key blocks from the right side of the line consisting of Joel Imman, Eddy Bradshaw, Randy Beasale, and halfback Holloway. Holloway again added the PAT. Marsh scored early in the fourth quarter on a fine run of about 50 yards with key blocks coming this time from the left side of the line consisting of Neal Hutto, Eddie Bryan, Ricky Gallimore and Steve Downfield. Holloway scored late in the fourth quarter on an up-the-middle play. The team was headed by quarterback, Dutch Oggs. Samson's offensive play was stopped by Elba's interior line with the help of Larry Bradshaw, defensive guard, and Larry Jacobs substitute linebacker.

BENCH IS SUNNY SPOT ON FALL MORNING

..... Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Oggs at the home they love.

A feature news story in The Birmingham News Sunday, October 21, was of much interest to the citizens of Elba and this area. The article featured Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Oggs, former residents of Elba, and who have a son, Billy Oggs, who continues to make Elba his home. Mr. and Mrs. Oggs are about to be uprooted by progress. They are residents of Ensley. Both are retired. She worked for twenty-six years in the boy's department of a Birmingham department store and he worked for the government as a resident engineer on construction projects. They will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary in 1964.

The Oggs, quoting from the News feature, are like any typical, retired couple loving their family and the home that holds so many memories. But they must leave their home for high wage progress. Mrs. Oggs is busy these days digging up her beloved flowers to be transplanted somewhere else and sorting through the accumulation of years of living, some to be thrown away, the rest to go to a new neighborhood.

Jaycees Give

Girdiron Awards

To Tigers

The Elba Junior Chamber of Commerce did not make an outstanding award in the Elba Hartford game in the Elba-Samson game. Larry Kelley, the big tackle of the Elba Tigers, received the award for his defensive play. Rudolph Free received the award for his offensive play against Samson. In the Geneva game Elba outplayed this undefeated team in the first half. Elba had a number of players injured and Geneva was too strong in the second half. Charles Pierce and Rudolph Free were outstanding in this game. Although they were injured and played little in the second half, Charles gets the award for his defensive work in the game and Rudolph, the big tiger fullback, gets the award for his offensive work.
